Position overview:

Working to your full scope of practice, the NP will provide services for the Locally Driven Population Health Model program for Sarnia Lambton which includes:

- Implement targeted, locally informed, culturally responsive interventions to improve healthcare access and support referrals and access to other social supports. These activities will enable upstream and proactive health care for First Nation Communities and Urban Indigenous individuals that have unmet healthcare needs.
- Support the following goals:
 - Improve access to culturally responsive cancer and chronic disease prevention and management supports;
 - Enhance access and attachment to primary care services;
 - Participate in health-related targeted clinics (i.e. sexual health, cancer screening)
- Navigation and referral to health, social and community support services in Sarnia Lambton
- Enhance population specific wellness models to improve access to primary health care, mental health and addictions supports.
- Provide stronger connections to wraparound supports and expand to new communities.
- Assist in the collection and reporting of data related to your work
- Work collaboratively with First Nation Communities, the Native Friendship Centre and others to provide Nurse Practitioner-Led primary care

On a practical level, you will have the following roles and responsibilities:

- Primary care NP, working at a variety of health centre settings, collaborating with the interprofessional teams at each site.
- Develop targeted health promotion and illness prevention clinics which may have more of a walk-in clinic format to meet community need

- Perform comprehensive nursing/medical history, physical and psychosocial assessments, and development and implementation of a plan of care to address identified needs.
- Provide direct, specialized care and/or consultation to patients, families, health care professionals, and community partners in situations where advanced nursing expertise is required (e.g., addictions, mental health, homelessness).
- Initiate and perform diagnostic and therapeutic procedures for identification and management of health care issues within NP scope of practice
- Participate in the development and advancement of best practice standards in care across the organizations in alignment with culturally sensitive care
- Work in collaboration with community providers to ensure services are in place to meet the needs of individuals and families.
- Contribute to continuous quality improvement initiatives within the organizations that are serviced.
- Develop, implement, and evaluate effectiveness of service programs in collaboration with Twin Bridges NPLC by providing data to the funder as required.
- Engage with the NP Team at Twin Bridges NPLC to provide primary care to a panel of registered patients.
